DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 42 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1, 11-22 and 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Freeland et al. USPN 5269775 in view of Boland et al. USPN 4710187.

As to claims 1 and 11-21, Freeland teaches a topsheet that is resiliently stretchable so that in use a gap is formed between the topsheet and the absorbent body (Abstract, Figure 3). Freeland does not disclose the backsheet is also stretchable. Boland discloses an absorbent article having a stretchable topsheet and backsheet for the benefits of allowing the diaper to self-adjust to the various shapes and forms of various babies caused by different anatomical features such as varying stomach and thigh sizes (col. 4, lines 35-44). One having ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated by the teaching of Boland to modify the invention of Freeland with a stretchable backsheet for the benefits Boland teaches.

The combination of Freeland/Boland provides a diaper with a stretchable topsheet and backsheet. The extensibility of the outer covers allows them to expand with the expansion of the absorbent core when wetted. Freeland/Boland does not disclose the backsheet and the topsheet are adapted to stretch differing amounts where a first amount of stretch of the backsheet is greater than a second amount of stretch of the topsheet or that the topsheet is more resilient. However, Freeland/Boland teaches the topsheet forms a gap between the topsheet and the absorbent body (Freeland Figure 3) for the purpose of isolating urine and fecal material from the skin of the wearer, which creates greater user comfort as well as aids in eliminating health problems. The present invention is concerned with creating space between the bodyside liner and absorbent to allow more ventilation of the skin and improve skin health as well. To employ a backsheet that has a higher degree of stretch than the topsheet would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art since

Art Unit: 3761

Freeland teaches the tautness of the topsheet contributes to the formation of the gap between the topsheet and absorbent article (Freeland col. 4, line 65 through col. 5 line 5; col. 6, line 67 through col. 7, line 3). Retraction force and stretch would have been obvious by optimizing the size of the topsheet and thereby controlling the extensibility of the topsheet.

As to claims 22 and 40, see Figure 3 of Freeland.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
6. Claims 23-39 are allowed.
